

About Uncle Mike's

Uncle Mike's Barbecue grew out of a long family tradition of gathering folks together to share barbecued ribs and sides that were two days in the making.

This same family tradition extended into serving food to neighbors and traveling entertainers such as Ray Charles and the Chi-Lites during the 1950's and 60's when Jim Crow in Seattle segregated restaurants. It is an honor to serve all our customers today good food with respect and dignity.

The menu reflects what Uncle Mike and his family and friends like to eat best. This includes the vegetarian members of the family. The BBQ tofu and mushrooms hold the hickory smoke flavor as well or better than some of the meats. And of course, dessert cannot be forgotten. The best sweet potato pie in Seattle is found right here.

This is real barbecue, not fast food. The best way to enjoy it is in the welcoming, homey atmosphere of Uncle Mike's. You'll become a part of the family, too.
